HENI announces release of new series of Collage screenprints by Sir Brian Clarke

HENI releases Nocturne in Blue by Sir Brian Clarke, a new limited-edition silkscreen print based on a never-before-seen collage by Clarke. The edition size is limited to 300 (plus 25 APs) and the prints are available by application on HENI Editions from 27 November until 17:00 GMT on 8 December 2025.

This is the first release in a series of forthcoming screenprints based on collage works that Clarke conceived and completed in the final months of his life. The remaining prints are planned for release over the next few years. HENI is committed to celebrating and recognising Brian's legacy.

Nocturne in Blue is a 32-colour silkscreen print with gloss varnish on Somerset Satin White cotton paper and is presented in a stained and oiled tulipwood frame. The work measures 80 x 60 cm (framed) and is priced at $1500 (plus applicable taxes). Each work is hand-signed by the artist on the front and hand-numbered.

Nocturne in Blue is based on a 2024 work on paper by Clarke, in which he turned to the incredibly intimate format of collage to capture the nature around him. Using his scissors to "draw from life", Clarke translated elegantly arranged blooming buds onto paper. From a vibrant blue vase, expressive pink flowers and verdant green leaves emerge, the liveliness of their forms emphasised by the visible fluidity of the paint.

Collage had always been central to Clarke's career, including in the creation of his stained glass. Reflecting on the significance of the medium, Clarke commented, "Collage was, in a way, a key that unlocked the door that led to a new kind of freedom. A freedom in which we were no longer concerned with how things appeared, but just how things were."

Nocturne in Blue will be on display at HENI Gallery until 8 December 2025.
